“Model Clubs” and the Best Practices They Engage to Stay That Way

“Model Clubs” and Best Practices:

Why do certain private clubs enjoy a great reputation for outstanding governance and management? What have they done to set a benchmark that other private clubs aspire to achieve? This program addresses a number of critical issues facing club managers and directors today as they focus on improving the management of their club. Subjects include how to clearly define the roles for club directors and the general manager, how the general manager can build trust with the board of directors, and how to effectively organize the club committees to support the work of the board. We will also discuss how to implement the five key functions of every private club board and how to accomplish more in meetings in less time. We will share the best strategies model clubs have engaged for effectively managing and directing their operations. The presentation will outline a number of methods for improving communications between the club general manager and board members and also clarify how board members can function more effectively in their roles. The strategies provided in this program will allow any private club to become a “model club.”
